Come & Try with Worldskills Queensland

The Careers and Employment Expo allows people to gain expert advice on a range of trades and engage directly with industry experts as they demonstrate their workplace skills.

Worldskills Queensland is facilitating a showcase of trades and other career pathways to help expo visitors, particularly soon-to-be school leavers, make informed vocational choices.

Worldskills Australia and its state-based bodies drive skills excellence in vocational, technological and service oriented careers.

They have raised the awareness of hundreds of thousands of young Australians and their parents, along with employers, that our nation's future depends on effective skills training systems.

Scott Carningham, Senior Consultant Program Delivery for Worldskills Queensland, said a wide range of training organisations and peak industry bodies were participating with hands on displays at the expo.

They include TAFE Queensland, Biga Training, the Brisbane School of Hair Dressing, Queensland Tourism Industry Council, Osmac Group Training and the Australian Brick and Blocklaying Training Foundation.

"Trades on display range from hairdressing and beauty to carpentry, mechanics and bricklaying," Scott said.

"People can see the tradespeople in action, so it provides an excellent opportunity to gain insights into the training and skill requirements to pursue particular careers.

"Qualified trainers and tradespeople will explain the skills and qualifications necessary to fulfil individual career aspirations across a wide spectrum of vocations.

"For example, the primary purpose of the Australian Brick and Blocklaying Training Foundation is to facilitate the placement of suitable apprentices with bricklayers and builders and to help see them through their apprenticeship qualifications.

"In this way it contributes to building a skilled workforce for the brickmaking and building industry."

Free Resume Workshops

Most job seekers start their quest for employment by completing a resume outlining their qualifications and personal attributes, then look for a job.

But, according to personal branding, recruitment and human resources expert, Marlene Cole, things have changed significantly in resume requirements that will impress a prospective employer.

"The huge majority of Australian job seekers are using old template-style resumes that do not get through the competitive process that will lead to an interview," she explained.

"The biggest change in resumes is that one size doesn't fit all. You must adapt your resume for each job application and there are key elements that must be addressed.

"Grabbing a resume template off Google or Microsoft Office is the biggest mistake people make. Don't do it!

"If you are applying for jobs and hearing nothing, your resume is not working.

"The new generation careers resume has a targeted headline, key word section and clear, quantifiable bullet points that will create a first impression foothold, show that the job seeker takes their career seriously, and demonstrate the value the person will bring to a company."

Marlene said job seekers often required the support of a professional career practitioner to help them develop the resume and presentation skills they need to get noticed. She has been writing resumes and LinkedIn profiles along with interview and job coaching for more than 15 years.

On both days of the Careers & Employment Expo, Marlene will present informative hands-on workshops to create winning resumes that meet what recruiters are looking for when seeking successful job candidates.

As an international multi-award winning resume writer, she has written resumes, performed job-search coaching and prepared candidates for interviews ranging from entry level to executive positions. This includes first time job seekers, people seeking to advance their careers within their current employment, and others looking for a complete new career path.

"I am passionate about helping people develop the career tools needed to get noticed and on the path to workplace success," Marlene explained.

Talk with Marlene at the Workshop Area.

ALL INDUSTRIES

Professional & Non-Professional
Applied for hundreds of jobs with no luck?

Free Advice on Career Opportunities

We live in an unpredictable world of work with many current occupations expected to be redundant in less than a decade.

Increasingly, young people and more mature workers seeking new employment directions will need the support of professional career practitioners to navigate unprecedented workplace changes.

The Career Development Association of Australia (CDAA) has stated that by 2030, workers will need greater problem solving and critical thinking capabilities, along with advanced skills in communications, science, technology, engineering and mathematics.

"The importance of understanding the changing nature of work cannot be underestimated, and young people in particular should actively seek career advice on skills development to achieve their aspirations," CDAA spokesperson Carolyn Alchin said.

"Relevant, expert and accessible career guidance is a necessity providing support for people in their understanding of future opportunities and the skills and qualifications necessary for them to be successful."

CDAA qualified career practitioners provide this advice based on a clear understanding of the education sector and the labour market now and into the future.

They also provide tailored advice using assessment tools to determine each person's skills and interests allowing an individual to make study and occupational decisions and effectively plan career transitions.

Career practitioners work in a range of settings including schools, TAFE colleges, universities, corporate organisations, government agencies and private practice.

Experts from the CDAA are at the Careers and Employment Expo to provide free advice on resume requirements and career opportunities.

"Work related needs and preferences evolve continuously as we adapt to economic, political and social change," Ms Alchin said.

"The focus of professional career development is on enabling people to develop the skills to manage these challenges, make good decisions about their working lives and maximise their contribution to the communities in which they live and work."

Don't miss the opportunity to engage directly with CDAA experts at the Career Advice Area during the Expo.
